

14 Killed; 24 Injured As Tel Aviv Is Bombed For First Time In War

By BERL CORALNIK

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
JERUSALEM—The Palestine Jewish community this week took action to spur recruiting as its answer to the bombing of Tel Aviv, in which fourteen Jews were killed and twenty-four injured, and repeated air-raids on Haifa.

Funeral services for the air-raid victims in Tel Aviv were disturbed by a brief alarm. Nevertheless, Mayor Israel Kokach continued his eulogy in front of Hadassah Hospital and Rabbi Amiel recited Kaddish before the Great Synagogue.

Tel Aviv's population of 200,000 met last week's raid calmly, rising from their beds to spend three hours in shelters. The warning sounded at 2 a. m. Five minutes later a wave of enemy planes flew over the city, dropping bombs in the northern section, hitting an invalids' home on Bilu street and similar "military objectives."

The major casualties were in the invalids' home, where four persons between the ages of 70 and 80 were killed and one was fatally injured. Four others were killed nearby, one of them being Mendel Probst, 53, well-known bibliographer, and a 90-year-old man. Four others were killed elsewhere. An 82-year-old woman died of heart failure during the raid. The second wave came over ten minutes later, mainly affecting the seashore.

Mayor Kokoach immediately arrived at Hadassah Hospital to comfort the wounded and supervise ARP work. Pajama-clad inhabitants left the shelters at sunrise, filling the streets as they went about trying to ascertain casualties and damages, which were surprisingly small considering the duration and intensity of the bombardment.

Following is the casualty list in the June 12 air raid on Tel Aviv:

The dead (14): Joseph Bronstein, 75, inmate of invalids' home, died of injuries; Chava Ehrlich, 82, died of heart failure in shelter; Miriam Friedlansky, 94; Pola Gressler, about 75, inmate of home; Esther Kraemer, 53; Haim Kupersmidt, 90; Rachael Leichenwald, about 75, inmate of home; Ovorá Nudelman, 80; Mendel Probst, 53, bibliographer and historiographer; Miriam Rapkin, 90; Ethel Sosnowsky, 80; Zivia Vinikov, about 75, inmate of home; Rachel Yarmush, 78; Mendel Zilberstein, about 75, inmate of home.

The injured (23, list incomplete): Gamil Anzari, Chaim Bender, Chaim Czasnevski, 27; Tova Eidelstein, 80, inmate of home; Chana Epstein, Some Feitelberg, Samuel Fredkin, 81; Channa Gozovsky-Jacobson, 55; Zivia Kupersmidt, Shiva Palewski, 55; Raisa Raigorodsky, Chaim Shradetsky and Abraham Zucker.

Josh Fineberg Elected; Lodge Votes To Abolish Nominating Committee

Featured by the close tally that marked the voting for almost every office, the Indianapolis lodge of B'nai B'rith Monday night re-elected Max Farb as president and named Milton J. Fineberg to the first vice presidency. Only one vote separated Mr. Fineberg from his opponent, Max Klezmer.

At the same time, in a voting almost as close, a suggestion by Samuel J. Mantel, retiring president of District Grand Lodge No. 2, that the nominating committee be abolished in future elections in favor of nominations from the floor, was adopted.

Other officers named were: Second vice president, Sam Kroot, who was unopposed; treasurer, Saul Munter, a past president of the lodge, who was nominated by Eph Levin, old-time campaigner, with the words, "your friend and mine"; assistant monitor, Monroe Leiser; honorary trustee, Henry Blatt; secretary, Julius Salzman, and trustees, Edgar Fassburg, Arthur Fairbanks, M. S. Cassen and Harold Cohen.

The offices of corresponding and financial secretary were combined into one, with Mr. Salzman named secretary.

The meeting was described by President Max Farb as one of the ATLANTIC CITY—More than two hundred rabbis from every part of the United States and from some foreign countries will begin five days of deliberation and action when they open the fifty-second annual meeting of the Central Conference of American Rabbis in Atlantic City next Tuesday.

The "release time" plan for religious education, currently being adopted by public school systems in many sections of the country and nationally the subject of much controversy, will be discussed at a special session of the rabbis on the third day of the convention.

The convention will officially begin Tuesday evening, when the rabbis will assemble to hear the message of their president, Dr. Emil W. Leipziger of New Orleans.

Dr. Joshua Liebman, rabbi of Temple Israel, Boston, Mass., is slated to deliver one of the major papers of the meeting when he speaks Wednesday evening on the subject, "God and the World Crisis—Can We Still Believe in Providence?" Another major paper will be a discussion by Dr. Solomon B. Freehof of Pittsburgh of the feasibility and advisability of a code of practice for Liberal Judaism. Dr. Freehof's paper will deal with such subjects as dietary laws, ritual ceremonies, synagogue observance, non-synagogue observances and marriage laws.

"How Archaeology Has Contributed to Our Knowledge of the Bible and of the Jew" is the title of a paper which will be presented by Dr. Nelson Glueck, professor of Bible and biblical archaeology at the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati.

The conference lecture will be delivered by Rabbi Samuel S. Cohen, professor of theology at the Hebrew Union College, and the conference sermon will be preached by Rabbi Solomon N. Bazell of Louisville, Ky.

A round table, in which six of the younger rabbis will lead the discussion, will consider the topic, "What Prayer Means to Me," and an informal discussion of the condition of the Reform rabbinate will be another feature of this five-day meeting.

Stay In Dad's Business, B'nai B'rith Advises

Special

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A warning that Jewish young people who spurn opportunities for a business career by not associating themselves with established firms owned or controlled by parents or relatives in favor of "a precarious existence in a profession or some other occupation" are deliberately foregoing one of the best of existing economic opportunities is sounded in "Jobs in Business," a new forty-eight-page illustrated study of the vocational opportunities for Jewish youth in business just published by the B'nai B'rith Vocational Service Bureau.

Written by Morton Joel Gaba, executive director of the Jewish Vocational Guidance Bureau of San Francisco, "Jobs in Business" points out that while it "may be courageous" it "is not necessarily sensible" for Jewish young people to "turn their back" to "a business which over a period of years has built up capital, goodwill and patronage, and to which one can apply his own training in the latest business practices. Of course, this suggestion is based on the assumption that he is qualified for the work and that he would be reasonably happy in it."

Based in part upon a survey of American collegiate schools of business, B'nai B'rith's newest vocational study indicates that discrimination against Jewish youth "is probably less severe in the sales field than in other business occupations. Mr. Gaba's survey of business schools discloses fewer reports of prejudice in sales work than in other business fields. He finds that many corporations "noted for their discriminatory hiring policies in office and plant frequently employ Jews as salesmen and saleswomen."

Banking, according to "Jobs in Business," is the field of business "in which prejudice is believed to be most intense. The findings of the survey made in connection with this booklet demonstrate how bank personnel policy discriminates against Jews. In fact, accredited university business administration schools throughout the country revealed that employers request non-Jewish business workers more frequently in the banking and financial fields than in any others."

The new study, which contains chapters on accounting, advertising, banking, clerical work, credit, personnel, statistics, sales and self-employment, may be obtained for 10 cents from the B'nai B'rith Vocational Service Bureau, 1003 K Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

AT THE CONCERT

A thick tense silence hung over the Butler Fieldhouse last Tuesday evening as Stokowski lifted his graceful hands and began to virtually pull exquisite symphonic tones from his All-Youth orchestra. Of the thousands there, probably three-fourths of them were held fascinated by the deliberate strong movements of Stokowski's hands. Ruby Decker was in his prime, surrounded by admiring friends back-stage and proudly taking his bow on the stage. For those who do not know, Ruby is a violinist with our own symphony orchestra, and very happily was chosen to play with Stokowski's All-Youth group. A few of the folks enjoying the evening were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Goodman, Rabbi and Mrs. Charry, Mrs. Isaac Born and mother, Mrs. J. J. Helman, sister and daughter Betty Maurer, Bernadine Dee, Evelyn Slung, and Meriam Sicanoff.

ABOUT TOWN

Strolling along downtown Illinois Street Friday night I spied Bud Fisher, Jean Roskin and brother Tony Roskin, all of Marion. They had driven in looking for excitement about town. P. S.—They didn't find it. In the Sapphire Room that same evening were Pat Jackson, Charlotte Blieden, Gerald Wohlfield and Milton Blieden. "Spring Meeting," as presented by the Keith players was the discussion of many a controversy last week. Most of the people didn't like it, however. Thursday evening Rosalyn Burman, Julie Lovinger and Ann Sattinger were bound and determined to like the presentation—and they did. Unexpected rain stranded Nahoma Feibleman in Ayres' Friday. Nahoma has just recuperated from a few weeks in bed due to the flue, but even that can't alter her rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes. Seen in Prime's hastily eating were business people Rosemary Frieburg, Harold Wild and Buch Farber (commonly known as Henry). Have heard a lot lately about the Pretender's next play—"Pure as the Driven Snow," a good old-fashioned melodrama. Anita Cohen and Sammy Sacks have the leads.

NAMES

Sapphire Room Saturday evening were seen having a lot of fun, Bob Marks and Ethel Kaplan, Jeanne Sacks, Joe Jackson, Jr., Janet Cooler and Melvin Finn of Georgia, Bob Schwab and Annette Simon recently returned from Ohio State, Bernie Bloom and Elsa Abrams of Chicago—guest of Mrs. Sam Klezmer, Mr. and Mrs. Manny Leve. Doug Brown, Mildred Cohen, Nate Sacks, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Selig, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Rubenstein, Lou Goldman, all gathered at the Wharf House. Later at Eaton's were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kammins, Harry Traugott and Miriam Gellman of Cincinnati, Fritz Goldbach and Caroline Meyers, Alfred Paul and Frances Fleischman, Mr. and Mrs. Al Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Stern, Florence Lustgarten and Bert Farber just arrived from the Variety Club, Betty Beitman, and . . . whew, I'm out of breath, and names.

HOUSE PARTY

A house party at last! Ruth Rosenthal celebrated both her birthday and graduation from Shortridge by giving a highly entertaining party Sunday evening. It was held at her aunt's, Mrs. Wides, and entertainment was aplenty what with ping-pong, badminton, games, dancing, and lots and lots of food. Evelyn Stein absent-mindedly kept addressing her date (much to his chagrin) as M—, oops, promised I wouldn't tell. Mildred Wolpoff, guest of Harriet Tamler's from Chicago, mistook Lee Engle and Sam Sacks for local boys and exclaimed over the cunning "Hoosier" accent. Imagine her consternation when they disclosed that they were straight from N. Y. Inda Larman and Bobby Cooper had a heated ping-pong game in the yard, with the usual triumph of male over female. Lou Silvers lost half of his voice shouting the toasts so everyone could hear him, but that didn't affect his good time. Leonard Berkowitz calmly received all the envious looks given his very good-looking new suit. Joe Tuchman went around renewing all the old friendships that school had forced to lapse. Thelma Levi and Walton Sicanoff sitting in opposite corners of the room—? Three pretty maids—Zelda Klezmer, Emily Peltz and Sylvia Madiel. Lee Engle dancing with his date, Janet Frisch, incidentally looking very lovely in yellow. Bill Borman looking quite the "joe" in his plaid jacket. One most unusual feature of the party was NO CRASHERS! What has happened to Indianapolis?

ABOUT PEOPLE

Kay Steinberg of Connersville and Horace Mann of New York seemed to be enjoying a week-end in Indianapolis very much. . . One hundred festive individuals gathered at the 25th anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Weiselberg at the Lincoln Hotel last Sunday. They witnessed a mock wedding with lovely vegetables as decorations. And then partook of a veritable feast. Everybody agreed that it was swell.

In Gary Monday evening we saw Loretta Diness, Jerry Baim, Ted Berg, Ted Kool, Ben Katz and

Jeanne Sacks. They all asked to be remembered to their Indian-

Dickstein Introduces Bill To Investigate Jewish Blame in War

By PAT FRANK

WASHINGTON—Representative Samuel Dickstein (Dem., N. Y.) has introduced a resolution calling for appointment of a seven-man House committee to investigate charges of anti-Semites that Jews were attempting to push the United States into war, as a challenge to the authors of these accusations to produce proof.

In his resolution Dickstein said: "Statements were made on the floor of this House that little groups of 'international Jewish brethren are attempting to harass the President and the Congress of the United States into plunging us into the European war unprepared' and it is in the interest of the people of the United States to determine the truth or the falsity of such charges. Such charges should be substantiated by competent legal proof and evidence."

In an interview with J. T. A. later, Dickstein said his challenge was particularly leveled at Senator Burton K. Wheeler and Representative John A. Rankin. Rankin made an attack on Jews on the House floor which provoked a reply from Representative Michael Edelstein that was followed by the latter's death of a heart attack.

Introducing his resolution, Dickstein declared on the House floor: "In the last several years charges have been made on the floor of Congress by members—and outside of Congress by certain groups—charging that people of the Jewish faith are warmongers, seeking to bring this country into war. Similar charges were made in Congress, in which it was charged that Jewish bankers or 'international Jewish brethren are attempting to harass the President of the United States and the Congress of the United States into entering the European war.'

"Others on the floor have made similar charges to the effect that certain Jewish international bankers are responsible for present conditions. These charges, in my opinion, are of a serious nature, not only from the standpoint of condemning a race of people of American birth, but also affecting the interest of our country in this particular time when we are trying to strive as a unit for the protection and defense of the United States.

"If these facts are not true and certain groups are using the Jewish minority as a scapegoat by accusing certain racial groups in this country, the country and the American people should know, if it wishes to continue unity and tolerance in this country."

Cohen and Jacobs Are Named Camp Workers

Appointment of two full-time counselors and several part-time counselors was announced this week by Mrs. Samuel Kroot, chairman of the Kirshbaum Center summer day camp committee.

The full-time counselors are Anita Cohen and Gordon Jacobs, while Elliot Goodman and Luba Horowitz are the part-time counselors. Miss Cohen was graduated from Tudor Hall and attended Goucher College for three years. She studied radio dramatics at the Arthur Jordan Radio School and has been active in Girl Scout work. Mr. Jacobs is a graduate of the University of Chicago. He is now a student at the Indiana University training course for social work.

Elliot Goodman will be a part-time counselor and will handle photography. Luba Horowitz has been added as a junior counselor. Others who will assist are Mrs. Helen Cox and Gene Britton of the Marion County WPA recreation project.

Registration can still be made for the summer day camp by calling at Kirshbaum Center. The rate is $3 for the season to regularly enrolled members of Kirshbaum Center and $6 for non-members. The latter fee entitles the child to a full year's membership.

A special taxicab service is available to those parents who desire to register their children and who have no way of bringing them to and from the building. There will be a nominal charge of 10 cents each way per day. A cab will call for the child at his home in the morning and return him to his home at night.

New U. S. Ruling Shocks Refugees

LISBON—Escape of refugees from Europe, already seriously hampered by lack of shipping, has been further restricted as a result of a new United States order, received at the consulate here, barring issuance of visas to refugees having close relatives in Germany and occupied territories.

The order, obviously aimed at preventing admission of those who might subsequently be subjected to German pressure and threat of reprisals against relatives, came as a severe shock to hundreds who were anticipating emigration soon. A large number of refugees have been served with expulsion orders and are facing imprisonment.

Illinois Senate To Bar Refugees From Professions

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The State Senate by a vote of 34 to 11 has adopted and sent to Governor Dwight Green a bill, previously passed by the House, barring aliens from fourteen professions and occupations. The measure would prohibit issuance of licenses to practice even to refugee professionals who have filed declarations

The housing committee for the Ohio Valley regional convention of Young Judaea, which the local council is sponsoring in Indianapolis July 4, 5 and 6, has reported that many more homes with extra rooms for delegates will be needed. of intention to adopt American citizenship.

In a vigorous fight against the bill, Senator A. L. Morowitz warned: "If the bill is passed, the democratic system in Lincoln's state is endangered because that's the way they started in Germany. Legislating against the refugee, representative of the groups who made America a free country, is criminal."

An amendment to free eminent European physicians from the restrictions was defeated. The bill was supported by the American Legion and several other organizations.

Way To Die

If I could choose my way of dying, I should like to go the way Congressman Edelstein went. Since there is no escaping the matter, one may as well go gallantly flaming with righteousness. That's the way Congressman Edelstein went.

His last few words were ringing in the halls of Congress for tolerance and justice when, by reason of the exertions his heart had given to the utterance, he dropped dead. He hadn't been among the great congressmen—if there are any great ones—but in his passing he was monumental and prophet-like.

All men would chose that way to die: "Yes," they would say, "we want to die in the full vigor of being righteous. To die carrying a brave banner! To die with an assertion of our ideals on our lips! That's the way to die. A man can leave behind so little that is worth anything. About the best he can do is to leave behind an echo of his dying voice speaking for decency in the ways of men."

That is what Congressman Edelstein left behind—a rich estate, I should say. An echo of his voice speaking for what is just and decent in America! His dying voice had been a reply to a certain revilement against Jews which had just been uttered in Congress. His brief answer, it seems to me, was pitched on the lofty moderation becoming to a civilized man who, being a Jew, had lived the thousands of years and in that time had learned that dirt thrown back soils the hands.

"Members of this House," he said, "I deplore such allegations because we are living in a democracy. All men are created equal, regardless of race, creed or color, and whether a man be a Jew or Gentile he may think what he deems fit."

The reports indicate that his voice trembled with the resentment of all the Jews in all the 2,000 years. He felt the more hurt that this revilement had been heard under the palladium of American democracy. He was the American asserting the ideals implicit in the Bill of Rights and the Declaration; he was the Jew speaking the timeless protest of his people.

His last words did not have the faultless polish of other "last words" that are cherished as literary inheritances on the tongues of the generations. Yet if I could prepare my last words for posterity I could not endow them with the feeling that was in Edelstein's. They contained all of the man's heart; in speaking them, in giving them all his feeling as American and Jew, he gave his last heartbeats, and died.

Congressman M. Michael Edelstein was buried almost two weeks ago; the obituaries that were written then now are but bits of newspaper blown about in the streets of cities; but it is not too late to write of him. Surely, he stands with those who have died for their causes.

His vacant seat in the House must be an embarrassment to Congress Rankin of Mississippi. He is the one upon whose head Edelstein laid his last words. Rankin had said: "Wall Street and a little group of our international Jewish brethren are still attempting to harass the President of the United States and the Congress of the United States into plunging us into the European war unprepared." Congressman Edelstein died answering this.

Yes, if I were Rankin, this vacant seat would be horribly embarrassing to me. It had contained a man who was quite inconspicuous in this House in his lifetime. If it had been asked "Which of these congressmen is Edelstein," I, Rankin, might have been troubled to pick out Edelstein from among the 434 mostly plain Americans assembled with me in Congress to make the laws.

But now, vacant, it has become the most conspicuous seat in the House—conspicuous in the eyes of all of our colleagues, particularly conspicuous in my own eyes: "There sat Edelstein. He stood beside it that day he gave that last speech. That's just where he stood, Rankin. The speech was only a minute long and a minute later he died."

I, Rankin, recall that not many speeches had emanated from this seat when Edelstein occupied it. A quiet man he was, never giving to stentorian utterance, now and again speaking his brief part, having his say and sitting down. But now his vacant place gives out poignant eloquence for my Rankin conscience: "Yes, Rankin, bow your head as you pass by. A bit of reverence, Rankin. A bit of reverence for this man whose last breath was for the things that are of America. He put his life into this devotion and died."

"He was one of the Jews, Rankin. Yes, I know what you are saying in your heart. You are saying you didn't mean all the Jews, but only some Jews. Yet what do you know of 'some Jews,' Rankin? Name them! Name them! And what did they do? And where and when? Give time and place, Rankin."

"Be honest, Rankin. You know nothing of names or deeds or time or place. You were but mouthing the words of evil men who in these times have sowed falsehood and hates in order to gather for themselves a harvest of power. You, Rankin! You, who have been endowed with the authority and responsibility that democracy gives its chosen men, you took their words and made them your own and spoke them under the authority and prestige of your office."

"Yes, Rankin, you took up a filthy lie and threw it and spattered a people. Step softly here, Rankin. Here stood this man that minute and spoke the verities of America out of his last heartbeats to answer you. In that minute, he was the greater man though his name was seldom in the papers, though the volume of his voice was humble beside yours. In the last minute of his life he stood in the lofty stature of an American."

All of this is what my conscience would hear were I Rankin passing by the vacant seat of Edelstein. I would step softly and bow my head in reverence and turn my face in shame.

Theodore Dann, Florence Brooks To Wed Tuesday

The marriage of Miss Florence Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Brooks of South Bend, and Mr. Theodore Dann of Indianapolis, son of Mr. Max Dan of New Castle, Ind., will take place Tuesday, June 24, at 8 o'clock at Temple Beth El. Rabbi Albert M. Shulman will officiate. Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the LaSalle Hotel.

After a month's honeymoon in California, the bride and bridegroom will be at home in Indianapolis.

Meyer Efroymsen was 70 Sunday and the family gathered to share the anniversary with him informally. He was the recipient of gifts and messages. Mr. Efroymsen's friends are legion. He has contributed much unostentatiously to the upbuilding of Indianapolis in civic and philanthropic affairs and is an exemplar of Jewish ideals in his character and in his generous support of Jewish enterprises.

Monuments will be dedicated in Chicago June 22 at Polonner Progressive Aid Society cemetery to the memory of Sam Hantman and his son Harry. Both were known and loved in Indiana. They were former residents of Terre Haute.

Mrs. Estelle Netzorg has returned from a few days' visit in Muncie.

Mrs. David Bernstein of Evansville is visiting her sister, Mrs. Goldberg.

Rabbi and Mrs. Morris Feuerlicht are in California.

Rabbi and Mrs. Maurice Goldblatt and children motored to Springfield, Ill., last week. Rabbi Goldblatt was in attendance at the round tables and forums at the Hebrew Union College summer institute for graduate study in Cincinnati, Ohio, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wohlfeld were in Terre Haute last week.

Mrs. Albert Rosenthal and daughter and Mrs. Jack C. Ottimer of Hollywood, Fla., have returned from New York. Mr. Ottimer motored from Hollywood, Fla., with his children Peter Albert and Susan Jane to join his wife here.

Mimi Goldfarb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Goldfarb of Louisville, former residents of Indianapolis, will be married to Fulton Kalners, Bangor, Maine, June 22 at her home in Louisville.

Mrs. Leon Wolf, who spent two weeks with her sister, Mrs. Sam Fox, has returned to her home in Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leventhal of Terre Haute have taken an apartment at 432 East Fall Creek boulevard.

WITH AN incredible richness and generosity, you have given birth to the perfumed orange groves of Florida and California, the waving wheat and corn fields of the Middlewestern plains, the white cotton fields of the South and the rolling expanse of the Eastern farmlands where tranquility and peace nourish the American principle of individual initiative against collective regimentation.

In your bosom, you have stored for our welfare all the minerals which American genius gratefully receives and transforms into peaceful instruments by which we live the most abundant life known in the history of mankind. You have given seed to and nurtured our priceless heritage of freedom of religious worship, free speech, free assembly and a free, enlightened press. With your beneficence, we have learned tolerance from the intolerant. Such soil, such land, we are thankful to be born on, eternally grateful to live on, and unyieldingly defiant to die on, if need be, to save our beloved land from the brutal rape which threatens to plunge the whole world towards a barbarism and slavery that staggers the imagination of civilized man. We are proud to be part of the first line of defense of American liberties . . . to always stand militantly at the side of every true American against the inroads of doctrines seeking to destroy America's priceless heritage.

HEBREW CALENDAR

Tisha B'ab .....Aug. 2
Rosh Hashanah .....Sept. 22
Yom Kippur .....Oct. 1

The Editor Chair:

Did you ever notice how certain individuals in Indiana communities resemble one another in the place they occupy in their respective cities. For instance, there is Ben Blumberg of Terre Haute and either Charles Rauh or Louis J. Borinstein of Indianapolis. Then there is Mrs. Barney Sandock of South Bend and Mrs. J. A. Goodman of Indianapolis. Or how about Mrs. Max L. Bernheimer of Terre Haute and Mrs. Isaac Born? For others, there are Mrs. Louis Markun of Indianapolis and Mrs. Isaac Salm of Evansville. Or there is Mrs. Andrew Fried and Mrs. H. Joseph Hyman. There are probably many more such obvious combinations. Can you think of some? Send them in.

A trial in Martinsville, Ind., last Monday with a Jew in the role of plaintiff against the town's leading druggist has been called to my attention. The Jewish fellow, a local traveling salesman, was making a routine call on the druggist when he was ordered from the store and called a string of anti-Semitic epithets. The Jewish fellow had turned to go, but in a surprised and stuttering way had warned the druggist that he would report him to a Jewish group (evidently the anti-defamation committee) when he was kicked from behind and forcibly ejected.

At the trial the prosecutor, who was quite courageous about his handling of the case, was assisted by an Indianapolis Jewish lawyer, and in every case the prospective jurors were asked if they bore any prejudice because of race, color or creed, and whether they would be free to judge the case on its merits and law. The druggist did not take the stand but did bring forward three witnesses, all of whom testified to the warning the Jewish salesman had made, which, of course, was a foolish and empty warning anyway.

As it turned out, the druggist was acquitted, the jury being out less than five minutes. I looked up the Martinsville daily paper for Monday and found the report of the trial which, of course, mentioned nothing about the Jewish angle. I had hoped that the paper might have taken a stand for American principles, for naturally the trial must have been the subject of conversation in Martinsville for weeks.

The incident is certainly indicative. The druggist did not need to defend his having literally kicked the salesman out of his store, nor the calling him of a vile string of

Return Leadership To Our Rabbis

THE present chaotic condition of leadership in U. S. Jewish lay organizations as contrasted with the cooperation and effective action of U. S. rabbinical groups is so glaring as to indicate, if for no other reason, a return of leadership in all Jewish affairs to our rabbis.

With the rabbis at the helm, the present puerile bickering between the national groups at this most critical time in the history of U. S. Jewry would not be countenanced. U. S. Jewry would be united, if in no other direction, certainly in respect to that of defense of the Jewish position in the United States. There definitely would not be the duplication in such fields as anti-defamation (there are three competing major groups here) or in the newest field, that of compiling a prospectus for the Jewish position when the world returns to peace (there are two competing groups here). Then, too, there would not be the fight that there is today between those for and those against a budgeting service for groups seeking funds from Jewish communities. In the constructive field, Jewish education both for adult and children would become a cohesive national effort. Jewish community centers, too, would become Jewish in activity as well as name.

In rabbinical groups, although there may be divergent views on religious matters, yet there is harmony and cooperation wherever interests allow. In lay groups there is jealousy and bickering and the frittering away of resources, so that even in the most essential need, that of a common front in combating the enemies of the Jew who in destroying him really seek to destroy Democracy, there is nothing but conflict and more conflict.

No Rest For The Tired

THE decision of Junior Hadassah to continue its activities right through the summer, although for the first time enunciated as a policy by a major Jewish organization, really evokes echoes from practically every Jewish organization. Actually, in these days, no Jewish group of any consequence takes a summer recess.

For the memberships at large, it is possible that there may be an absence of meetings, but certainly not for the officers and not for the executive committees. These workers not only meet and make plans for next season's activities, but go right on working as if the summer months had been extracted from the calendar. In B'nai B'rith, can you imagine the anti-defamation committee or any other major committee stop functioning because the calendar reads June instead of October? In the Zionist District, have you been able to detect any lessening of interest in Palestine's welfare because the world, in traveling on its orbit, has approached nearer to the sun?

No, there used to be a day when summer meant vacations and rest and surcease from worry, but can anyone remember that far back?

Rabbis As Editors

RABBI JULIAN B. FEIBELMAN'S announcement of the end of his editorship of The Jewish Ledger of New Orleans means a real loss to Anglo-Jewish journalism in the United States. Taking a nondescript editor's page, which printed only "canned" editorials, Rabbi Feibelman transformed The Ledger into a journal whose opinion was respected and whose words on important questions were always significant. The post liked Rabbi Feibelman's editorials because the southern spiritual leader was not afraid to take a stand on national issues.

Rabbi Feibelman, like Rabbi Abraham Feldman who edits The Jewish Ledger of Hartford, Conn., has earned the respect of the lay editors in the field who realize that they cannot hope to bring to their publications the background and erudition of their rabbinical compeers and who appreciate much more than anyone else the courage these men reveal in refusing to mince words despite their rabbinical garb.

Current Comment

The Philadelphia Dispatch Uses Poetry to Emphasize Ridiculousness of Religious Requirement for Employment—DEMOCRACY!

I

WANTED, someone who can work
Intelligently and not shirk,
Who is active, neat-appearing
Who's not forever disappearing
From the job to him assigned,
Who to hard work must be resigned;
One who dresses well in style,
One who must be a Gentile.

II

WANTED, a stenographer,
Whose attention does not waver
From dictation of the boss,
Who's dead set against time loss;
Must be pretty and quite smart,
Should always act and look the part
Of one accustomed to success,
One who must be a Jewess.

III

WANTED, for important post,
Traveling from coast to coast,
Must have had experience,
Be gifted with much common sense;
One who to the trade can talk,
One with a distinguished walk,
A quiet one and elegant,
One who is a Protestant.

IV

WANTED, for a job momentous,
One who will try to prevent us

From losing time on big contract,
Who can make a good contract
With the customer exacting,
Which is a part of good contracting;
One whose life has been symbolic
Of what is a good Catholic.

V

Thus we find the atmosphere
Of the Western Hemisphere,
Where thrives ideal Democracy,
On the shore of Western sea,
Where tolerance is highly praised
Among those who will be amazed
To find that bigotry's rampant,
'Mong Catholic, Jew and Protestant.

A strange commentary upon the workings of the world's greatest and most liberal Democracy may be gleaned from the want advertisement columns of Philadelphia's largest Sunday newspaper. In 40 of the help wanted advertisements the jobs are open only to Protestants. In 90 cases preference is expressed for Gentiles and in 17 instances advertisements asked for members of the Jewish faith. In three of the advertisements Catholics were wanted. The advertisements included those of the employment agencies. The applicant, in many of the advertisements, is required to state his or her religion. One unbogoted, liberal soul, advertised "no religious prejudices." In the columns devoted to Situations Wanted, a great many of those seeking employment state their religion.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Final plans for the annual tennis matches of Gamma Alpha Beta were announced this week. The doubles tournament will be held at the Riverside tennis courts Sunday, June 22, and the singles will be held the following Sunday, Harris Sentir, chairman of the athletic committee, said.

Morris Mitchell, G. A. B. champion last year, is out of the city and will not play this year.

anti-Semitic names, and still the jury took almost no time to acquit him. There are many points to this story, but for one it can be said that the Jewish question has definitely been made a part of the American scene, and that Hitler and his American henchmen have actually accomplished a major part of their purpose, that is, to get the citizenry to thinking that there is a Jewish problem in the United States.
